THE TELEGRAM APOLOGIZES

Just as we were going to press on Tuesday, this great news flashed into our office—THE "TELEGRAM" HAS APOLOGIZED.

Yes, it sounds almost unbelievable, doesn't it? But there it is, occupying two pages of Tuesday's issue.

It is an apology to Mr. S. W. Jacobs, M.P., and to the Jewish people. This is the first time in the history of the "Telegram" that it has had the courage to apologize to the Jews, or to any other people that it has attacked unjustly. The "Telegram" admits that Mr. Murton's article slipped in through an error, without first having been read by the editor. We are believing enough to accept this excuse. But the funniest thing in the whole lengthy apology is the new pose the "Telegram" is assuming. "We are a friend of the Jew and always have been," is the lamb-like way in which the wolf is bleating, whilst it tries to pull a sheep's skin over its wolfish hide.

It is to laugh. Would to God that it had been so! No one would have been happier than we if this had been the case. But we are willing to let bygones be bygones, and to forgive and forget. We Jews, who set aside one day a year as a Day of Atonement to ask God to forgive our sins, cannot expect the Almighty's forgiveness for our sins, unless we are also prepared to forgive those who sin against us. God Almighty, the "Telegram" and we know, that in the past the "Telegram" has sinned against us grievously. "Its sins are like scarlet, but they shall become white as the driven snow." Tuesday, November 18, marks the Yom Kippur of the "Telegram." We are ready to forget and forgive, provided the "Telegram" promises not to sin again, and become a friend. What we seek is justice and the square deal. We ask no more, and can accept no less. The "Telegram" has not always been just to Jews. The very fact that it still does not deny all the lying slanders of Mr. Murton, excepting those that it must, in order to crawl out of a libel suit which Mr. Jacobs could institute, is not very reassuring.

Mr. Editor of the "Telegram," do not try to draw a red herring across the trail.

Yet knowing human nature as we do, we realize how difficult it must be, and how unnatural it is to expect the "Telegram" to make a clean breast of its past sins all at once. We are satisfied to give the "Telegram" another chance. Let it prove in its future conduct that it is not hostile to our people.

As for the "prominence" which the "Telegram" has seen fit to give our utterances, and our humble person in this connection, we will endeavour to bear it.

We were told when we wrote our editorial against the "Telegram" which appeared in the October 3rd issue of this paper, that we were rubbing the cat's fur the wrong way. Our answer was "Let the cat turn around." We rejoice that it is beginning to do so.

WHY THE JEW LIVES LONGEST

In a recent article dealing with vital statistics in Canada we find some interesting fact about the Jews. In the City of Montreal alone the death rate from tuberculosis shows the proportion for French-Canadians to be .74 per thousand, English-speaking Canadians 1.23 per thousand, and Jewish-Canadians to be only 0.63 per thousand. In other words, Jews seem to be, comparatively speaking, less susceptible to this disease than are the other elements of the population. This news is exceedingly good news.

It has long been a well known fact that the Jew is less subject to infectious diseases such as tuberculosis, less to malignant diseases, but somewhat more subject to nervous diseases, and considerably to diabetes, which seems to be almost exclusively a Jewish disease.

The Jew has been subjected to more privation and persecution, and has been exposed to severer life-depriving conditions than that of any other people. Yet we are to-day more numerous than at any other time in our history, and will probably become more so unless the western world succeeds in teaching our people the practice of birth control. Our mortality rates are, according to competent life insurance actuaries, astoundingly lower than that of other people. Old age is extremely common amongst us and our infant death rates surprisingly low.

The reason for this condition, it has been said, is due primarily to the laws of moderation which Jews practice in their daily life, and the high moral standard of their personal and family relations. The Jew does not suffer from alcoholism nor from syphilization. The Jewish dietary laws, especially as regards the eating of flesh of freshly killed beef and fowl, with its code of sanitary cattle inspection, was another important reason for the healthy condition of Jews. It was also responsible for our lowered mortality rate from pulmonary diseases. Our people practiced meat inspection and drew a distinction between wholesome and unwholesome food long before the modern peoples of the world knew anything about this subject. The Jews, long before other people, also realized the unsuitability of many substances which are consumed even at the present time by non-Jews and which unquestionably do much harm.

The sanitary code of Moses was punctiliously observed by Jews, and is responsible in no small measure for our longevity. With Jews, "cleanliness is next to godliness" became a religious prescription.

It has been calculated that the Jew has on the average a ten-year higher expectancy of life than have other peoples. This gives us an enormous social and economic advantage. Longevity and a people's progress go hand in hand. The social homogeneity of our race tends in no small measure also to our preservation as a people. We are to-day, in spite of all the untoward conditions we have had to face, the oldest civilized white people in the world.

We look after our own poor, and Jewish paupers are practically unknown. Jewish idlers are rarer. Jewish economic progress is proverbial. To our love of learning and culture the world attests. In our people everywhere to-day is noticed an eagerness for the wider learning of western civilization. All we ask for is opportunity.

If the Jewish people will maintain its traditional loyalty to our moral ideals and religious standards of life, it is certain that we will maintain our record for longevity, and those particular social and cultural advantages that accrue from it. In this respect we bring to the countries of our adoption and birth an asset that few other people contribute.

Let us assimilate and absorb all that is best in the traditions and ideals of our neighbours, and make them our own; but let us not be disloyal to our creed and ideal, and by imitating the bad habits of others, sell our birthright for a mess of pottage.

Next March Isa Kremer is going to sing in Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec. This autumn she failed to return to Toronto and her spring programme again ignores this place and surrounding country. A woman of sense, she goes where she thinks she is appreciated. Isa Kremer was here twice. The first time, kind people took a chance, bought tickets and immediately became sworn adherents. The second time a roll call of charter members of the Kremer following would have shown a substantial majority present, for no one who has heard Isa Kremer once is taking a chance the second time. He knows his ticket is a bargain. The trick with regard to Isa Kremer was to get an audience the first time, for she is almost new to America, and the Toronto hinterland is loth to experiment. The management under which the singer came here was a mismanagement, or else the press agent was at fault, for both Toronto audiences were swallowed up in the dim recesses of Massey Hall as a result. What there was of them, however, was more than once on the verge of leaving the seats, and moving nearer the spell of Kremer's artistry. So there is as much appreciation of Kremer in Toronto, at least among the Jews and Italians, as there is for any other artist who has ever been here. She is a balladist of the first quality, singing in many languages, and the first one in this country to put Jewish folk-song on the printed programmes of Carnegie Hall standing. She is unique in the fact that wherever she goes she is known as a Jew, thus making an effective contrast to her fellow Russian Jewish artists in America.

Most of the others are announced as Russians. Their names have been improved, and they succumb easily to the blandishments of managers and press agents to veil their Jewish origin, when they might be adding glory to the race they affect to love in private, and obviously shun in public. It is only in the Jewish press that they are hailed as Jews, too effusively, defiantly, by papers claiming their reluctant brethren. If they are mentioned as Jews in the daily press, it is carefully as though not to offend. Many of these artists, who through silly fear of diminished gate receipts strive to impress the public with affectation and personal pretense, are Litvaks of humble origin who, divorced from their talent, might be distasteful to the goyim and those Jews who have been bleached out by money and too much leisure. As it is, they suffer themselves to be lionized and fed on unaccustomed canapés and weird entrées, far from their native "zibbele" kuchen or herring and plain boiled potatoes.

Isa Kremer is nothing like that. You don't have to beg her for an "Eili, Eili." When a colony of newly-rich Jews outside New York City refused to endorse a concert because they didn't want to hear her Jewish songs sung before a mixed audience of Jews and Gentiles, she sang them anyway, doing the Jewish people in the country a service, adding prestige to the name of the race, delighting some against their will. In Toronto, people should clamour for her Jewish folk-songs, because they can understand them so well. She is mistaken if she thinks there is not a large, appreciative audience for her here. Only it must be assembled as all large audiences are, under business-like auspices. This is a plea to some organization or other to show the singer that Canadian music-lovers are not segregated in Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec, after all.

Such a state as Jewry across the border must be in, lack-a-day! The president of a large North Side Jewish congregation in Chicago is arraigned on charges of alleged conspiracy to violate the prohibition act, and in commenting upon it, Charles Joseph, of the "Pittsburgh Criterion," makes the unadorned statement that there is more than one mushroom congregation in America existing apparently for the sole purpose of trafficking in liquor as sacramental wine. Joseph goes on to charge that Jews, communally speaking, are too lenient against their bootleggers. He says that any congregation which finds it necessary to accept financial support of the tainted kind should retire rather than live and lose its self-respect. Und so geht es in America!

Canadian Jews may well look askance across the border. To them, the behaviour of their southern brethren will seem the direct result of irreligion, for how else do people get that way, mixing up religion, synagogue, presidents, with liquor, bootlegging, arraignments? Those American Jews have lapsed into such carelessness and indifference, as they themselves will sometimes tell you—wandering from the hearty, old-time reverence for the fitness of things, and for derech erets—they seem to lack stamina. You read about them that they fall victims to all sorts of temptations. Canadian Jews still take their Jewishness seriously. Consequently things don't happen here that occur across the way. There is the border, and long may it remain a bar between synagogues that are pure and any synagogues which may be built on booze. If bootleggers in connection with synagogues must get into trouble, let it be over there. If they wax fat, let it be there. Anything, so long as they don't come here with their strange, incomprehensible ways.

REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION

All contributions for the Junior Section must be sent to CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, 319 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario. Any girl or boy is welcome to join our section and to contribute poems, essays, stories, riddles, etc. Just fill out this little card and mail it at once.

REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION:

I would like to join the Cousin Family of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

My name is _____

I live at _____

I am _____ years of age.

Come one! Come all! Let's have lots and lots of new cousins. Ye Maker of Limericks says he'll write a limerick especially for every new cousin. And though I say it as shouldn't, Ye Maker of Limericks certainly can write poems! (You'll note I said "poems" and not "poems"—there is a difference!)

We have decided to make this a "different" competition . . . and to let you choose your own subject. There will be prizes for the best entries. There are absolutely no rules, except the usual ones that are observed in writing to us. You may write a story, an essay, a poem, a comedy, a tragedy (I almost said, a melodrama!), a play, a thesis, what you will—and each will be judged on its own merits, with prizes for the best. So, cousins mine, you have carte blanche: choose your own subject and your own medium for expression and mail us the result AS SOON AS POSSIBLE, as the competition closes on November 26. Everybody welcome.

Cousin David.

Dear Cousins,

I have told you, have I not, of the Bezalel Schools or Work Shops, in Palestine, where the workers fashion things of great beauty—exquisitely designed jewellery, beautifully inlaid articles of wood, draperies and wall hangings of original designs, and other things as lovely as they are well made. For at the Bezalel shops, the workmen are artists, who love their handicraft. I can wish you no more beautiful gift than something created in Bezalel. To-day I ran across this poem, which was written by Israel Zangwill. You probably know some of his stories. If you have not already read them, you have something very worth while before you.

Ye Maker of Limericks.

Bezalel.

Bezalel, filled with wisdom to design,
Stones, precious wood, rich-embroidered fabrics, gold.

Fed not the few with cunning manifold
Nor empty loveliness—his art divine
Set up a tabernacle as a sign
Of oneness for a rabble many souled
So that each span of desert should behold
A nomad people with a steadfast shrine.

But we, its sons, who wander in the dark,
Footsore, far-scattered, growing less and less.

What whiteness glooms our brotherhood
to mark,
What promised land our journey's end
to bless!

We are, unless we build some shrine or ark,
A dying rabble in a wilderness.

Israel Zangwill.

A new competition will be announced next week. Watch! look! and then contribute!

AUTHORS' CLUB

IN THE TENTS OF ISRAEL

A cry arose from the assembly as they turned to greet the travellers. The men whom Moses had sent out from the camp, that they might explore the land into which he had prayed to lead his people, now came to their leader, foot-sore and with dusty, tattered garments, sick for rest, yet as men who have seen great things and are afraid. Some of them carried glowing pomegranates and figs, moist and brown, such figs are the children of Israel had never seen, not even in fertile Egypt. And two of their number, Sethur, son of Michael, and Genel, son of Machi, carried a staff from which hung a great cluster of purple grapes, bursting with wine.

The people cried aloud in their joy: here a mother embraced her son, and there a wife kissed her husband from among the twelve; for those in the camp had feared that they might never look upon their faces again. And all were mad with joy at the tempting fruits, for they knew now that the land beyond the Jordan must be a pleasant land and fertile, a land flowing with milk and honey. So unmindful of the dangers and the struggles that still awaited them ere they took the land for their own, they raised their voices in thanksgiving, and praised God in their joy.

Deborah swayed where she stood. "My child cannot die if we are to enter the Promised Land so soon," she said, and wondered why Moses smiled at her words, though with sad eyes, that seemed strangely troubled. Like one in a dream she reached out her hand, and plucked several glossy grapes from the cluster the two men carried. Then, a strange hope in her eyes, she again forced her way through the half-mad multitude, never pausing until she reached her child, still lying asleep, while her father fanned her with the little branch in his hand.

Her eyes brimming with tears, Deborah knelt beside the little one, and pressed the juicy grapes between her fever-parched lips. "From beyond the Jordan," she murmured happily. "So eat, my dearest one, eat, and praise God who has brought thee back to life. For surely the God of our fathers has heard my prayer, and thou wilt live to enter the land which He has promised unto us forever."

Little Rachel stirred, and slowly opened her eyes. She looked up into her mother's face, and tried to smile. "What pretty grapes," she whispered. "I want thee to take me where they grow, mother, that I may be well and strong again."

And her mother promised, weeping in her joy. For neither she nor Simon dreamed that without in the camp, the children of Israel, still distrustful, murmured against God, who, because of their lack of faith, would condemn them to wander in the wilderness for many weary years ere they should enter the Land of Promise.

THE BOOK NOOK

It is possible for a dozen good books to make a man over in the course of a year, changing the arrangement of his brain cells and doubling his effectiveness.

When a man says he doesn't have time to read, you can immediately draw one of two conclusions:

1. He does not care for reading, or
2. His time is badly organized.

Remember, cousins all, articles for the "Book-Nook" are very welcome!

POETS' CORNER

Dear Cousins:

Because I want you to become acquainted with Jessie Sampter, Hyman Segal, Israel Zangwill, C. N. Bialik, H. Snowman, Morris Rosenfeld, Israel Goldberg, Samuel Roth, Yeboash, Jehudab Halevy, Emma Lazarus, S. Frug, an oh, so many other Jewish poets, I am going to have one or two of their poems printed here every once-in-a-while. Perhaps you will let me know how you like them? They are poems to think and to dream over.

Cousin Judith.

THE JEWISH STRUGGLE

Come, you gold-braided, generals and admirals—

Who told you blood is a sign of struggle?
Who told you struggle must mean destruction?

Who told you strugglers must wear uniforms?

Who told you battles are fought by you?

Come, you bold commanders skilled in war,

And I will show you a well-planned struggle,

The most astounding earth has seen,
Making your shining brigades look foolish

And your smart cavalcades a derision.

Come, put your heads together,
Look in through the broken window-frame,

Crowd around the low thatched house.
What do you see?

Only a hoary old man,
Reading with his sorrow-shaded eyes,
In a mouldy time-worn book,
Before two candles.

—Hyman Segal.

TWO THINGS

Life is mostly froth and bubble,

Two things stand like stone:

Kindness in another's trouble,

Courage in your own.

—Adam Lindsay Gordon.

Song of Sunrise

Day!

Faster and more fast.

O'er night's brim, day boils at last;

Boils, pure gold, o'er the cloud-cup's brim

Where spurting and suppressed it lay—

For not a froth flake touched the rim

Of yonder gap in the solid grey

Of the Easter cloud, an hour away;

But forth one wavelet, then another,
curled,

Till the whole sunrise, not to be suppress,

Rose, reddened, and its seething breast

Flickered in bounds, grew gold, then overflowed the world.

I AM A JEW

BY JEANNETTE B. JACOBSON, IN "THE AMERICAN HEBREW."

I am a Jew.

When first I caught my breath

I was a Jew.

Nothing distinguished me

From any other babe;

Neither colour, creed nor form.

Yet lovingly my folks

Raised me

Heavenward

And thanked their God,

For me, their babe—a Jew.

To-day

I raise my arms

Toward heaven

And I wonder

Why I was born a Jew.

To hear sarcastic criticism

And to bear

The brunt of hate

—Survival of superstition—

Aimed against me.

To bear myself maligned

For the inherited virtues

On which I pride myself;

My humanity,
My acumen.
My scholarship,
My spirituality,
Yea, my mastery of the mart.
They fling my wealth
Into my face,
As though a thing polluted.
What need have I of wealth
When my country,
Whose allegiance
I have pledged,
Scorns me for the wealth
I make for it?
Yet scores of those
Who hate me,
Ranting o'er my riches,
Forgetting my poverty,
Bask in excess.

Take Henry Ford,
A Bible in his mansion,
Eyes on the White House.
We, who made the Book,
Stand beneath
The bitter scathe
Of his vile Dearborn sheet,
Trembling lest
Our country,
Built for freedom,
Lose its freedom
In the gyves of intolerance.

Yet,
Pitted against my progress,
Ku Klux Klans menace,
And ignorance
And conjured "Protocols"
Send poisons abroad in the land,
Breed ignorance and superstition,
Beget hate and rancour.

Oh! I want to
Fall upon my knees
And beg forbearance—
To lay my weeping head
Upon my country's bosom,
To feel her heartbeats
With understanding
Of me and mine,
Our pangs and persecutions,
Our fealty and faith.

But
I am a Jew.
And never may a Jew
Fall upon his knees
Except before his God,
Upon the Day
Of Atonement,
When in humble
Self-abasement,
He begs forgiveness
For his sins;
Before his God alone,
May he bend the knee.

And so instead,
I cast my tear-red eyes
Upon the crimsoned
Poppy-fields,
Where
Mingled with the white
Of wooden crosses
Stand Mogen Dovid markers.
And I know
The pigment of those poppies
Growing there
Is deeper for
The blood that poured
From Jewish hearts,
And mingled with the red
Of those

That mutely rear
Those crosses
For democracy.

And I wonder
If, unknown
There lies, perhaps,
My brother there
In Arlington.
Who knows?

I am a Jew.
I may not kneel.
Yet, full of faith,
I let those Mogen Dovid symbols—
Those Star of David shrines—
Speak for me.

OF COURSE

Suddenly run up to a friend and say: "I will sell you two five-cent tickets!"

"What for?" I expect your chum will say, in surprise.

"Ten cents," you tell him, as you prepare to run out of the door.

TURKISH JEWS EMIGRATING IN LARGE NUMBERS

With the establishment of the new nationalist regime in Turkey, many of the old Jewish settlements there are being disorganized. The many restrictions imposed on trade and the chauvinistic policy assumed by the Angora Government caused an economic crisis among the Jews of such old and well established Jewish settlements as Smyrna and Salonika. Non-Turks are being dismissed from positions that they have held for years and a violent anti-Semitic propaganda is being carried on in the Turkish press, which makes the Jews apprehensive of their future there. Many families from Smyrna have already emigrated, while many others are preparing to do likewise at the first opportunity.

A number of Jewish tourists from Salonika visited Palestine during the summer and made a close study of economic and industrial conditions there. Several have settled in the land permanently, while others have returned to Salonika with the intention of winding up their affairs there and coming back to settle in Palestine. A group of 146 tourists from Salonika also arrived in Jaffa recently and were accorded a hearty reception by the Jewish population of Tel Aviv. It was reported that many families engaged in the fishery and boating industry in Salonika have expressed an urgent desire to come to Palestine to ply their trades there.

The Hadassah Medical Unit is planning to institute a Health Week throughout Palestine some time in the autumn, when an intensive propaganda for sanitation and health will be conducted by means of pamphlets and lectures. Each day will be devoted to a special purpose, as Baby Day, Hygiene Day, Food Day, Germ Day and First Aid Day.

Why YOU Should Purchase A Canadian Government Annuity

Because in old age it will free you from the dread of poverty or of becoming a burden upon others;

Because it will bring you comfort and independence in your later years;

BECAUSE IT WILL GIVE YOU A LARGER RETURN FOR THE AMOUNT INVESTED THAN ANY OTHER LIFE INVESTMENT OF EQUAL SECURITY.

For example, if a man of 20 will pay to the Dominion Government the sum of $5.31 a month until he is 60, the Government will agree to pay to him from 60 as long as he lives $50 a month—a return equal to over 23 1/4 % on the total amount paid.

If he dies before 60, every dollar that he paid in, with 4 % compound interest, would be returnable to his heirs. If he should die between 59 and 60, the amount so returnable in a cash sum would be $6,230.00.

Such an Annuity may be of any amount from $50 to $5,000 a year, the cost being relatively the same. It is non-forfeitable, cannot be seized for debt, and is free from Dominion Income Tax. For full particulars fill out this Coupon and address it as directed.

BNAI BRITH CELEBRATES

Notable Gathering of Bnai Brith

The celebration of "Canada Night" by nine hundred members of the Bnai Brith (Sons of the Covenant) Lodge took place Monday, in the King Edward Hotel. A musical programme and toast list followed the banquet in the Crystal Ball-room.

The ritual of the order was publicly exemplified for the first time in Canada. Louis M. Singer presided.

Hon. Arthur Meighen congratulated the officers of the Lodge on the manner in which they exemplified the ritual of the order. The patriotic character of the proceedings, said Mr. Meighen, was in keeping with the history of the Jewish people.

Replying to the toast of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, his Honour Mr. Cockshutt sounded the call to the new citizens to fill up the vast territory of Northern Ontario, where they would develop and build up the country.

"The call is for public service—that is the modern ideal," said Mr. Justice Riddell.

Proposing the toast to "Canada," Rabbi B. R. Brickner stated that to him Canada was a spiritual entity where the Almighty was trying out a new experiment in the world. It was a new experiment in brotherhood that was being tried out, but some people had a false conception of what brotherhood meant.

If he understood Canada aright, they wanted different nations to come here—people of all nations, of all countries, bringing the best of their culture and ideals with them. They wished to try in Canada an experiment in brotherhood. "Canada is that common melting pot into which each one of us places the best we have." To be a great nation Canada did not need to be of a common blood, but of a common mind, inspired by a common ideal.

The toast to Canada was replied to by John A. Tory, who urged all parties within the Dominion to stand together and make Canada a worthy place to live in.

The toast to "The Visitors" was proposed by Louis M. Singer and replied to by H. C. Hocken, M.P., Lieut.-Col. R. H. Greer, K.C., and Rev. Father Minehan.

Sammy Rzeszewski, twelve, chess prodigy of Detroit, four years ago easily defeated Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist, in a game of chess at the latter's home here. It is now apparent that those few moves may prove the most important the child genius ever made. Mr. Rosenwald is making arrangements to take over the direction of his education and to bring him to Chicago. Rabbi Saul Silber, president of the Hebrew Theological College, Chicago, believes the chess marvel holds great promise as a Hebrew theologian and if Sammy agrees, Mr. Rosenwald plans to enter him in the Chicago College, paying all his expenses. Sammy, now in Detroit with his parents, when eight and a half years old, played twenty games simultaneously at West Point, defeating old army officers and the student selected as the best undergraduate player. In Chicago he played the champion, Edward Lasker, at the home of Mr. Rosenwald.

Emir Abdullah, the ruler of Transjordan, received valuable advice from his brother, King Feisal of Mesopotamia. "Be careful. Remember the fate of the throne in Syria," wired King Feisal. It will be recollected that Emir Abdullah was once proclaimed King of Syria from which he was later exiled by the French.

A Parable and a Parody

By KAREL CAPEK

(Though Karel Capek is well known in America as a dramatist, many may not be aware that he likewise enjoys a very high reputation among his countrymen as a philosophical essayist. The following pseudo-Biblical dialogue is characteristic both of the man and of a present phase of Czechoslovakia's emotional history. The sketch appeared originally in Ruch Filosoficky, 1923 (Prague Philosophical Monthly), and is taken from The Living Age.)

There came two angels to Sodom at eve; and Lot saw them and rose up to meet them; and he bowed low before them with his face to the earth.

And he said, "Behold now, my lords, turn aside, I pray you, into your servant's house, and tarry all night, and wash your feet and ye shall rise up early and go on your way." And they said, "Nay; but we will abide in the street all night."

And he urged them greatly; and they turned in unto him, and entered into his house; and he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread and they did eat.

And the strangers said unto Lot, "Hast thou here any besides these whom we see? Thy son-in-law, and thy sons and thy daughters, and whomsoever thou hast in the city; bring them out of the place; for we will destroy this city because its sin and uncleanness have become an offense before the Lord."

Lot was sore troubled when he heard this and said, "Why should I leave this place? Whereupon they told him, "Because Jehovah does not wish to destroy the righteous."

Lot was silent for a long time, but at length he said, "My lords, kindly allow me to depart, and tell my sons-in-law and my daughters to prepare for our journey." They answered him, "Do so."

And Lot went out and ran through the streets of the city and cried to all the people, "Up, get you out of this place; for the Lord will destroy the city." But he seemed unto them as one that mocked.

Lot returned home but did not lie down to rest. He sat up and thought the whole night through.

And when the morning dawned, the angels came again to Lot, saying, "Arise, take thy wife and thy two daughters which are here; lest thou be consumed in the iniquity of the city."

"I shall not go," said Lot. "Forgive me, but I shall not go. I have taken counsel with myself the whole night. I cannot leave, because I am one of the men of Sodom."

"Thou art righteous," protested the angels, "but they are unrighteous, and their iniquities have angered Jehovah. What hast thou to do with them?"

"I do not know," said Lot. "I too have been considering what I have to do with them. All my life long I have complained of my countrymen and judged them so severely. Yet now it grieves me to think that they are doomed thus to perish. Aye, and when I came to the city of Segor its inhabitants seemed to me more righteous than the men of Sodom."

"Rise," said the angels, "and go to the city of Segor, for it will be spared."

"What is Segor to me?" answered Lot. "There is a righteous man in Segor; whenever I spoke with him, he complained of his countrymen even as I cursed the men of Sodom, because of their sins, but now I cannot go away. I beg you, leave me here in peace."

But again the angels spoke and said: "Jehovah hath bidden us to destroy the men of Sodom."

"His will be done," said Lot quietly. "I have been thinking all the night through, and have remembered many things, until they cause me to weep. Did you ever hear the men of Sodom sing? No, you don't know them at all, for you would not come in this way."

When the maids go along the streets, they swing their bodies and hum a song through their lips; and they laugh when they draw water in the buckets. No water is clearer than that of the Sodom wells; and no language among all languages is sweeter to listen to. When a child speaks, I understand him as if he were mine; and when he plays, it is the game I used to play when I was little. When I wept as a child, my mother soothed me with the Sodom tongue. Dear Lord," cried Lot, "it seems as if that were but yesterday!"

"The men of Sodom have sinned beyond pardon," said the second angel gravely, "and therefore—"

"They have sinned, I know it," interrupted Lot. "But have you watched our craftsmen? They look as if they were playing; and when they fashion a fair vase, or weave a piece of linen, one's heart bounds with joy to watch their cunning hands. They are such skillful men that you could look at them all day long. And when you see them do ill deeds it pains you more than if you saw a man of Segor do them. It tortures you as if you yourself were guilty. What use is my righteousness to me if I am a man of Sodom? If you are judging Sodom, you are judging me. I am not righteous. I am like them. I will not leave this place."

"Thou wilt be destroyed with them," said the angel, with a clouded face.

"Maybe I shall; but first I shall try to save my fellow-citizens from destruction. I don't know what I shall do; but to the last moment I shall think it my duty to help them. Do you think it easy for me to leave? I am opposing the Lord, and therefore he won't hear me. Oh, would that he grant me three years, or three days, or at least three hours! What would three hours matter to Him? If He had bidden me yesterday, 'Go away from their midst, for they are unrighteous,' I should have told Him: 'Grant me a little time. I shall speak to this one and that one; I have been judging them instead of pleading with them to be righteous. How can I leave now, when they are to be destroyed? Am I not also one of the causes why they have sunk deep in sin? I don't want to die; but I must be sure that they will not be destroyed.' I shall stay."

"Thou wilt not save Sodom."

"I know I shall not; I cannot do anything! But still I shall try, although I know not why; I only know I must stay. All my life I have condemned them more harshly than anyone else; I have borne with them my heaviest burden, their iniquity. Lord, I cannot put in words what they are to me; I can only show it by staying with them."

"Thy countrymen," said the angel, "are those who are righteous and believe in the same Jehovah as thou; while the sinners, the wicked, the idolaters are not thy countrymen."

"How can they not be my countrymen, when they are the men of Sodom? You do not understand me, because you do not know the voice of the flesh and the earth. What is Sodom? You say it is a wicked city. But when the men of Sodom fight, they don't fight for their wickedness, but for something better than was or will be; and even the worst among them can die for the others. Sodom, that means all of us; and if I count for something before the Lord, let Him ascribe my merits to Sodom, and not to me. What more can I say? Say to the Lord: 'Lot, thy servant, will place himself before the men of Sodom and will defend them against Thee, as if thou wert his enemy.'"

"Stop," cried the angel. "Terrible is thy sin; but the Lord hath not heard thee. Get ready, and leave this city; save at least thy wife and the two daughters thou hast."

And Lot burst into tears: "Yes, I must save them; you are right. Please lead me."

But he lingered; and the angels laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hands of his two daughters; the Lord being merciful unto him.

And when they led him out Lot prayed and said:

"All that life gave me, it gave me through Thy hands, O Sodom! It made my flesh of thy earth and put words into my mouth which are in the mouths of thy men and women; and behold, thus I kissed them with every word I uttered, even when I cursed them."

"I see thee even when I shut my eyes, for thou art deeper in me than my eyes; thou art in me just as I was in thee."

"Sodom, Sodom, art thou not the most beautiful of cities? And if I saw only a little window covered with striped linen, I should recognize it and say: 'This is a window of Sodom.'"

"I am like a dog that they are taking out of the house of his master; even when he drops his snout deep into the dust, in order not to see, he still recognizes the smell of the things he knows."

"I believed in the Lord and His law; in thee I did not believe, but thou art; the other countries through which I pass are unsubstantial as a shadow, where I cannot rest against a wall or a tree; they are indeed like a shadow."

"But thou art as nothing else. And all that is, is only real to me so far as I can compare it with thee. If I see thee, I see thee only, and if I see something else, I see it only in comparison with thee."

"I believed in the Lord because I believed Him the God of Sodom. If there is no Sodom, there is no Jehovah."

"Ye gates, gates of Sodom, whither do they lead me—and into what emptiness? Where am I to put my feet? For there is no ground underneath me; and I stand as if I did not stand. Go on, my daughters, and leave me; I cannot go any farther."

And they brought him forth and set him without the city. And it came to pass, when they had brought Lot and his family forth, the angels said: "Escape for thy life; look not behind thee, neither stay thou in all the plain; escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed."

The sun was already risen upon the earth when they said this.

Then the Lord rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire, from the Lord out of Heaven.

And when he beheld this, Lot turned round, shrieked, and ran back to the city.

"What art thou doing, thou accursed man?" cried the angels after him.

"I go to help the men of Sodom," answered Lot, and he entered the burning city.

The City of New York will shortly have a Jewish museum, consisting of a valuable collection of Jewish religious ceremonial objects. The collection was for twenty years housed in the National Museum of the United States, where it was under the supervision of Dr. Casanowitz. The collection was the property of a New York Jewish family who have been adding to it throughout the years. Recently the family was compelled to sell the collection, but the United States government was unable to make the purchase because of lack of an appropriation. Subsequently, it was purchased by a group of wealthy New York Jews and it will be moved to New York. The collection contains Jewish art objects from different periods of Jewish history and while it was on exhibition at the National Museum here it was the centre of attraction for thousands of visitors, Christians as well as Jews.

Although Fordham University is a Catholic institution and scrupulously observes all the Catholic rites, the School of Pharmacy was closed on Rosh Hashonah to permit the Jewish students to observe the day. The school authorities also arranged to dismiss classes earlier than the usual hour, in order to permit Jewish members of the class to leave in time for the Yom Kippur observance. Dr. Jacob Deiner, dean of Fordham College of Pharmacy, is a Jew.

STANDARD THEATRE

"The Step Child of the World" at the Standard Theatre proved so popular as to necessitate a second week.

The next play, a drama written by Max Gabel of New York, is "Anshtendige Menschen" (Decent People), November 21 to 22.

EMPIRE

A fast-moving, splendidly staged show with a cast and chorus that leaves nothing to be desired, will be the reward for those who visit the Empire Theatre week of November 24, during the engagement of Peck & Kolb's "Hippity Hop." These two enterprising producers have displayed a reckless disregard for expenditures in the production of this their latest Columbia Burlesque, and their reward has been in the large audiences that have filled the theatres where they have played in other cities.

"Hippity Hop" is in twelve big scenes, including four that are well worth especial mention. The first of these is an imposing staircase illuminated by hundreds of incandescents. The second, "In Old Mexico," is a Spanish scene of unusual magnitude and colour. The third, "The Walls of China" is Chinese in its design and one of the most beautiful Oriental sets seen in even much larger productions, while the fourth depicts "The Black and White Club" in an ornate Broadway cabaret of brilliant splendor.

As to the matter of cast, "Hippity Hop" excels many higher-priced attractions. Heading the noteworthy list of principals is Abe Reynolds, one of the most popular Hebrew comedians in Columbia Burlesque. Grace Cameron, well-known musical comedy star and mimic, is another prominent member. There will also be Kay Norman, clever little soubrette; Lora Carol, prima donna; Lew Lewis, German comedian, and Duke Rogers, who gives one of the cleverest impersonations of the late Bert Williams seen in a long time. Others in the cast of importance are Lui Ring, tenor, Tony Novak, a delightful singer and fancy yodler, Thad DeMonico, Thelma Leonard and Kanui's Hawaiians.

But clever as these principals are, they have to look to their job to protect their laurels from the wonderful chorus Peck & Kolb have gathered together for "Hippity Hop." The choristers rate high among the speediest, the youngest and most talented bunch of girls seen in many moons and they know how to wear to advantage the many exquisite costumes provided for them by the management.

SHEA'S

Two big acts, Herman Timberg and "The Rebellion," head the bill at Shea's Theatre next week.

Herman Timberg is fun's little brother. Timberg has not been seen in vaudeville for some time. During this period he has been writing and producing his own shows and starring or being featured in big productions by other managers. He has been one of vaudeville's best-liked singles. Now Mr. Timberg has taken his brother Sammy into partnership with him. Sammy is a foil for Herman's fun. They are seen in a conglomeration of those things which they do best—called "Little Bits."

When jazz became a factor in music, the rebellion started. Since then almost everybody has become involved. Eminent musicians have declared that syncopation is not music at all. Other eminent musicians say it is and have included it in their repertoire. Satire thrives on the things that are in the public eye and so this merry little musical war has become melodramatic satire on the present-day craze for syncopation. Sammy Timberg and Sonia Meroff head a large cast of singing and dancing comedians and of course there is a band, none other than Bill Pike's Survivors' Band.

Richard Kean, until he entered the music halls, was one of the best known character actors in England. During the days of the late Sir Henry Irving, he was known as the distinguished actor's double and was frequently called upon to play Sir Henry's roles. A few years ago he conceived the idea of using these parts in the music halls and for this purpose he worked out a plan that enables him to present several characters in rapid succession.

Ernest Hiatt is an exceptionally clever artist, who offers "Nothing Serious," consisting of songs and talk of a nature that never fails to score the biggest kind of a laughing and applause hit.

Charles and Madeline Dunbar present a singing and dancing act. Cecil Mason and Bernice Shaw offer "All for a Girlie."

Weyman and Company, a team of foreign gymnasts, are truly sensational. Their feats are distinct and their work rapid and clean cut. Coleman's Police Dogs and Shea's News Review complete the bill.

Insurance policies aggregating $1,200,000 protect against loss by fire, vandalism and theft the priceless collection of books and manuscripts that comprise the library of Hebrew Union College at Cincinnati. This huge sum, just made public, however, does not fully cover the value of many of the literary treasures in this theological seminary library, or give an inkling of the monetary importance of a collection which has been slowly gathered together from all corners of the earth, and concentrated at Cincinnati to make this institution one of the world's great centres of Hebraic literature and culture.

late Alexander Aderer of this city bequeathed his estate, the value of which is as yet undetermined, ultimately to the local Hebrew Orphan Asylum, the Hebrew Technical Institute and the Educational Alliance in equal shares.

Arthur Goldman, seventeen, graduating from Cleveland High with an average of 95.7, has received a four-year scholarship to Washington University. Arthur is the fourth son in the Goldman family to receive similar honors.

Bernard Barron started the election fund for the British Labour Party by donating a sum of 5,000 pounds sterling. This announcement was made by Arthur Anderson, British Labour Home Secretary, who is a personal friend of Mr. Barron. Mr. Barron, who is the managing director of Carreras, manufacturers of the famous Black Cat cigarette, is not active in politics, but is a sympathizer with the British Labour Party. Forty-five years ago, Bernard Barron lived in New York, where he worked as a cigarmaker, at the same bench with Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labour.
